THE ITALO-COLOMBIAN DISPUTE.

The recent announcement made by General Rengifo, the Colombian Charge d'Affaires at Washington, to the effect that an international commission had assumed the task to arrange peacefully Cerruit case, arrived just in time to quiet the ap-prehensions which might have been caused by the reading of the latest Rome papers. They stated that Admiral di Brocchetti was to leave the capital immediately after Christmas, in order to assume the command of the !talian squadron in American waters. That squadron is now commanded by Admiral Candiani, who brought it from Europe at the beginning of the trouble between Italy and the United States of Colombia, and who visited with it afterward the principal ports of South America-La Guayra, Porto Cabello, Bahia, Pernambuco and Rio de Janeiro. According to the latest advices by mail from that squadron, it was Candiani and his officers were invited to a banquet and a ball by the Italian Circle of the Argentine capital. It was at that ball that the ex-President of the neighboring Republic of Uruguay, Senor Herrera y Obas, now an exile, met his mortal enemy, the revolutionary Colonel Latorre, and the two rolled down on the floor of the ballroom and had to be separated by Dr. Borghini, president

At the same time that the Rome papers announced the impending departure of Admital Brocchetti, an interpeliation had been made in the Chamber of Deputies to the Minister of Foreign Affairs in regard to that departure. The Minister did not give an answer, but vague declarations, which did not explain the nature of the new conflict raised between Italy and the States of Colombia. This has been made known since then through the explicit declarations of General Rengifo, who spoke to the Washington newspaper correspondents, after having received a dispatch from his Government at Bogota. That Government had compiled willingly with the conditions imposed upon it by President Cleveland, who had been chosen arbitrator, and Admiral Candiani. With his Italian squadron, had been cordially received in Colombian ports. Signor Cerruit received the award granted to him by the arbitrator, and it is gratifying to hear that Admiral Brocchetti will not need to make any threatening demonstration in favor of Cerruit's creditors, who allege that their bills must be paid by the Colombian Government. nounced the impending departure of Admiral Broc-
